

SHERIEA GUNU

BIOGRAPHY

Sherifa Gunu is a Ghanaian Afro soul musician and performer. She was born a princess into a royal family of the Kingdom of Dagbon, in the Northern Region of Ghana.

She started her music and dance career at a tender age. She competed in both regional and national dance competitions and became the Northern Regional dance champion and the first runner-up in the 1998 Embassy Pleasure, a popular national dance championship in the 1990s. She later participated in the 2003 Hiplife dance championship with the likes of King Ayisoba and Terry Bonchaka and won.

Ghanaian Africana superstar, Sherifa Gunu, was the toast of fans who gathered at the National Theatre for the maiden edition of Zongofest, a show to honor distinguished Zongo personalities and also discover young talents.

She is described by many as crowd shaker, and energetic performer when it comes to singing and dancing. Sherifa Gunu will Always leave an impression in the minds of any one who comes into contact with her.

Musical career

she has performed with most professional musicians in Ghana and other part of the world namely, Kojo Antwi, Amakye Dede, Daddy Lumba, Nana Acheampong, Sarkodie etc. Sherifa Gunu performed at the Golden Tulip hotel in Accra during the launch of Ghana's premium networking event known as the 'Corporate Wednesday'.

In 2017, she released a single titled Salamatu, which is also the title of one of her album. She revealed that the reason for the title of the single is to recognize the uniqueness of some African names. She also continued releasing other hit tracks to her credit.
